Premio | white-filled oak

228 Duomo

527 Duca

Known as the world center of design, City of Milan presents cutting-edge fashion—and so does the style Premio. White-filled oak is the hottest flooring trend throughout Europe—a strong direction for several years in the European marketplace that's now climbing in the U.S. This resilient plank style offers long, linear sawn-face grains, for an effect that's elegant as well as fashionable.

Premio | weathered skip-sawn wood

Here's a highly sophisticated reclaimed visual inspired by weathered skip-sawn wood. This stunning resilient plank appears to have years of age and patina—a refined reclaimed look that goes casual or elegant. One color offers paprika tones—rich, warm, and comforting; the other is a blend of nutmeg hues—cool olives, browns, and khaki.

505 Oliva

617 Salerno

764 Scala

Olive trees on the Amalfi Coast are the inspiration for this resilient plank style. The handsome trees have swirling, uniquely detailed grain patterns caused by windy climate conditions. Here, their exotic look is replicated beautifully—without the negatives associated with harvesting exotic hardwood. The rich colors include a warm taupe, a drenched coppery red, and a warm cocoa brown.

Premio | rainwater-marked walnut

218 PIAZZO

516 FRESCO

754 MONTE

Designers saw a 200-year-old door in Northern Italy—struck by rain over time and beautifully watermarked. The memorable sight inspired this resilient plank, which replicates rainwater-marked walnut, aged and mellowed to accentuate the handsome grains. In three trend-perfect colors: rich chocolate, caramel, and hazelnut.

Premio | reclaimed visual

248 Lucca

549 Siena

575 Cortona

An upscale reclaimed visual with lots of variation between planks, this style offers an aged look with a sense of history. It was inspired by weathered, painted boards—like artists' palettes with years of paint layers. Premio colors are: Lucca, a combination of rich creams, taupes, greys, and ivories; Siena, a blend of mushroom, charcoal, khaki, and white; and Cortona, a painted visual that looks like the paint is wire-brushed off to reveal a strong, grey brown.
